1. PRC LAWS AND REGULATIONS

The PRC Legal System

The PRC legal system is based on the PRC Constitution (中華人民共和國憲法) and is made up of written laws, administrative regulations, local regulations, autonomy regulations, separate regulations, rules and regulations of State Council departments, rules and regulations of local governments and international treaties of which the PRC government is a signatory. Decided court cases do not constitute binding precedents, although they are used for the purposes of judicial reference and guidance.

The National People's Congress of the PRC (中華人民共和國全國人民代表大會) ("NPC") and the Standing Committee of the NPC are empowered to exercise the legislative power of the State. The NPC has the power to formulate and amend basic laws governing State organs, civil and criminal matters and other matters. The Standing Committee of the NPC is empowered to formulate and amend laws other than those required to be enacted by the NPC and to supplement and amend any parts of laws enacted by the NPC during the adjournment of the NPC, provided such supplements and amendments are not in conflict with the basic principles of such laws. The Standing Committee of the NPC is empowered to interpret, enact and amend other laws not required to be enacted by the NPC.

The State Council is the highest organ of State administration and has the power to formulate administrative regulations based on the constitution and laws.

The people's congresses of provinces, autonomous regions and municipalities and their respective standing committees may formulate local regulations based on the specific circumstances and actual requirements of their own respective administrative areas, subject to the constitution, laws and administrative regulations. The people's congresses of larger cities and their respective standing committees may formulate local regulations based on the specific circumstances and actual requirements of such cities and enact the same after submitting to the standing committee of the people's congresses of provinces or autonomous regions for approval. The standing committee of the people's congresses of provinces or autonomous regions shall examine the legality of local regulations submitted for approval, and such approval should be granted within four months if they are not in conflict with the constitution, laws, administrative regulations and local regulations of the province or autonomous region concerned. Where conflicts with the rules of the People's Government of the province or autonomous region concerned are identified in the examination of local regulations of larger cities by the standing committee of the people's congresses of provinces or autonomous regions, a decision should be made. "Larger cities" refer to cities where the people's governments of provinces or autonomous regions are located, cities where special economic zones are located and larger cities as approved by the State Council.

People's congresses of national autonomous areas have the power to enact autonomy regulations and separate regulations in the light of the political, economic and cultural characteristics of the nationality or nationalities in the areas concerned. The autonomy regulations and separate regulations of autonomous regions shall be submitted to the Standing Committee of the NPC for approval before taking effect. The autonomy regulations and separate regulations of autonomous prefectures and counties shall be submitted to the standing committees of the national people's congresses of provinces, autonomous regions or municipalities for approval before taking effect. Adaptations of provisions of laws and administrative regulations may be introduced to the autonomy regulations and separate regulations according to the cultural characteristics of the nationality so long as they do not contravene the basic principles of the laws or administrative regulations, provided that no adaptations shall be made to specific provisions on national autonomous areas contained in the constitution, autonomy law of national areas and other relevant laws and administrative regulations.

The ministries, commissions, People's Bank of China, National Audit Office of the State Council and institutions with administrative functions directly under the State Council may formulate department rules within the jurisdiction of their respective departments based on the laws and the administrative regulations, decisions and rulings of the State Council. Provisions of departmental rules and regulations should relate to the enforcement of the laws and administrative regulations, decisions and rulings of the State Council. The people's governments of provinces, autonomous regions, municipalities and larger cities may formulate administrative rules based on the laws, administrative regulations and local regulations of such provinces and autonomous regions and municipalities.

According to the PRC Constitution, the power to interpret laws is vested in the Standing Committee of the NPC. According to the Decision of the Standing Committee of the NPC Regarding the Strengthening of Interpretation of Laws passed on June 10, 1981, the Supreme People's Court has the power to give general interpretation on application of laws in judicial proceedings in addition to its power to issue specific interpretation for specific cases. The State Council and its ministries and commissions are also vested with the power to give interpretation of the administrative regulations and department rules which they have promulgated. At the regional level, the power to give interpretations of the local regulations as well as administrative rules is vested in the regional legislative and administrative organs which promulgate such regulations and rules.

The PRC Judicial System

Under the PRC Constitution and the Law of Organisation of the People's Courts of the PRC (中華人民共和國法院組織法), the PRC judicial system is made up of the Supreme People's Court, the local people's courts, military courts and other special people's courts. The local people's courts are divided into three levels, namely, the basic people's courts, the intermediate people's courts and the higher people's courts. The basic people's courts are further divided into civil, criminal, economic and administrative divisions. The intermediate people's courts have divisions similar to those of the basic people's courts and other special divisions (such as the intellectual property division). These two levels of people's courts are subject to supervision of people's courts at higher levels. The people's procuratorates also have the right to exercise legal supervision over the civil proceedings of people's courts of the same level and lower levels. The Supreme People's Court is the highest judicial organ of the PRC. It supervises the administration of justice by the people's courts at all levels.

The people's court shall apply the system whereby the second instance is final, i.e., the judgment or ruling of the second instance at a people's court is final. A party to the case concerned may appeal to the people's court at the next higher level against the judgment or ruling of the first instance. The people's procuratorate may appeal to the people's court at the next higher level in accordance with procedures stipulated by the laws. In the absence of any appeal by any parties to the case and any appeal by the people's procuratorate within the stipulated period, the judgment or ruling of the people's court shall be the final judgment or rulings. Judgments or rulings of the second instance of the intermediate people's courts, the higher people's courts and the Supreme People's Court are final. Judgments or rulings of the first instance of the Supreme People's Court are also final. If, however, the Supreme People's Court or a people's court at a higher level finds an error in a final and binding judgment which has taken effect in any people's court at a lower level, or the president of a people's court finds an error in a final and binding judgment which has taken effect in the court over which he presides, a retrial of the case may be conducted according to the adjudication supervision procedures.

The Civil Procedure Law of the PRC (中華人民共和國民事訴訟法) (the "Civil Procedure Law") adopted on April 9, 1991 and amended on October 28, 2007 prescribes the provisions for instituting a civil action, the jurisdiction of the people's courts, the procedures to be followed for conducting a civil action, and the procedures for enforcement of a civil judgment or ruling. All parties to a civil action conducted within the PRC must comply with the Civil Procedure Law. A civil case is generally heard by a court located in the defendant's place of domicile. The competent court may also be selected by express agreement amongst the parties to a contract provided that the court selected is located at the plaintiff's or the defendant's place of domicile, the place of performing the contract or the place of executing the contract or the object of the action, provided that the provisions of this law regarding the level of jurisdiction and exclusive jurisdiction shall not be violated.

A foreign national or foreign enterprise is generally given the same litigation rights and obligations as a citizen or legal person of the PRC. Should a juridical system of a foreign country limit the litigation rights of PRC citizens and enterprises, subject to the principle of reciprocity, the PRC courts may apply the same limitations to the citizens and enterprises (in the PRC) of that foreign country. If any party to a civil action refuses to comply with a judgment or ruling made by a people's court or an award made by an arbitration tribunal in the PRC, the other party may apply to the people's court for the enforcement of the same within a stipulated period. Should anyone be unable to execute the judgment of the people's court within a stipulated period, as a result of any party's application, the people's court shall enforce such a judgment in accordance with the law.

A party seeking to enforce a judgment or ruling of a people's court against a party who is not personally or whose property is not within the PRC may apply to a foreign court with jurisdiction over the case for recognition and enforcement of such judgment or ruling. Similarly, if the PRC has entered into a treaty relating to judicial enforcement with the relevant foreign country or a relevant international treaty, a foreign judgment or ruling may also be recognized and enforced according to PRC enforcement procedures by a PRC court based on the equity principle unless the people's court considers that the recognition or enforcement of a judgment or ruling will violate the basic legal principles of the PRC or its sovereignty or national security, or social and public interest.

The PRC Company Law, Special Regulations and Mandatory Provisions

The PRC Company Law was adopted by the Standing Committee of the Eighth NPC at its Fifth Meeting on December 29, 1993 and came into effect on July 1, 1994. It was amended thrice on 25 December, 1999 and on August 28, 2004 and revised on October 27, 2005. The latest revised PRC Company Law came into effect on January 1, 2006.

The Special Regulations were passed at the 22nd Standing Committee Meeting of the State Council on July 4, 1994 and promulgated and implemented on August 4, 1994. The Special Regulations are formulated in respect of the overseas share subscription and listing of joint stock limited companies. The Mandatory Provisions promulgated by Securities Commission of the State Council and the State Restructuring Commission on August 27, 1994 prescribe provisions which must be incorporated in the articles of association of joint stock limited companies to be listed on overseas stock exchanges. Accordingly, the Mandatory Provisions have been incorporated in the Articles of Association. References to a “company” made in this Appendix are to a joint stock limited company established under the PRC Company Law with H shares.

Set out below is a summary of the major provisions of the PRC Company Law, the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions.

General

A “company” is a corporate legal person incorporated under the PRC Company Law with independent legal person properties and entitlements to such legal person properties. The liability of the company is limited to the full amount of its assets and the liability of its shareholders is limited to the extent of the shares held by them. Companies can be divided into two different categories: limited liability companies and joint stock limited companies.

Incorporation

A joint stock limited company may be incorporated by promotion or subscription. A joint stock limited company may be incorporated by a minimum of two but not more than two hundred promoters. At least half of the promoters must have residence within the PRC.

Joint stock limited companies incorporated by promotion are companies the entire registered capital of which is subscribed for by the promoters. The initial capital contribution by all promoters of the joint stock limited company shall not be less than 20% of the registered capital. The remainder shall be paid up within two years from the date of incorporation of the joint stock limited company by the promoters. For investment joint stock limited companies, the remainder may be paid up within five years. Shares in the company shall not be offered to other persons unless the registered capital has been paid up. For joint stock limited companies incorporated by public subscription, the registered capital is the amount of its total paid up capital as registered with the registration authorities. The minimum registered capital of a joint stock limited company is RMB5 million or as required by the laws or administrative regulations, whichever is higher.

For joint stock limited companies incorporated by way of promotion, the promoters shall subscribe in full in writing for shares required to be subscribed by them by the articles of association. The full amount of capital contribution shall be paid up if payments are made in one lump sum and the first installment shall be paid forthwith if payments are made in installments. Procedures relating to the transfer of title for nonmonetary assets shall be duly completed if such assets are to be contributed as capital. Promoters who fail to pay up their capital contributions in accordance with the foregoing provision shall be liable for breach of contract in accordance with the covenants laid down in the promoters' agreement. After the promoters have completed the initial capital contribution, a board of directors and a supervisory committee shall be elected and the board of directors shall apply for registration of incorporation by filing the articles of association with the company registration authorities, together with a capital verification certificate issued by a capital verification institution established by law and other documents required by the law or administrative regulations.

Where joint stock limited companies are incorporated by subscription, not less than 35% of their total shares must be subscribed for by the promoters and the remainder can be subscribed for by the public or particular persons, unless otherwise provided for by the law or administrative regulations. A promoter who offers shares to the public must publish a shareholder prospectus and draft a share subscription form to be signed and sealed by subscribers, specifying the number and amount of shares to be subscribed for and their addresses. The subscribers shall pay up the amounts for the number of shares they have subscribed for. Where a promoter is offering shares to the public, such offer shall be underwritten by securities firms established by law, in relation to which underwriting agreements shall be signed. A promoter offering shares to the public shall also sign an agreement with a bank in relation to the receipt of subscription amounts. The receiving bank shall receive and keep in custody the subscription amounts, issue receipts to subscribers who have paid the subscription amounts and furnish evidence of receipt of subscription amounts to the relevant authorities. After the subscription amounts for the share issuance have been paid in full, a capital verification institution established by law must be engaged to conduct capital verification and furnish a report thereon. The promoters shall convene an inauguration meeting within thirty days since the date on which all the shares have been fully subscribed and notify each subscriber of or publicly announce the date of the inaugural meeting no less than fifteen days in advance of the meeting. The inauguration meeting shall be formed by the promoters and the subscribers. Where shares issued remain undersubscribed by the cut-off date stipulated in the share offering prospectus, or where the promoter fails to convene an inauguration meeting within thirty days after subscription amounts for the shares issued have been fully paid up, the subscribers may demand the promoter return the subscription amounts so paid up together with interest at bank rates payable for a deposit of an equivalent amount for the same term. Within thirty days after the conclusion of the inaugural meeting, the board of directors shall apply to the registration authority for registration of the establishment of the company.

A joint stock limited company is formally established and has the status of a legal person after the approval of registration has been given by the relevant administration bureau for industry and commerce and a business license has been issued.

A joint stock limited company's promoter shall individually and collectively be liable for:

- (i) the payment of all expenses and liabilities incurred in the incorporation process if the joint stock limited company cannot be incorporated;
- (ii) the repayment of subscription moneys to the subscribers together with interest at bank rates for a deposit of an equivalent amount for the same term if the joint stock limited company cannot be incorporated; and
- (iii) damages suffered by the joint stock limited company as a result of the default of the promoters in the course of incorporation of the joint stock limited company.

Share capital

The promoter of a joint stock limited company may make capital contribution in currencies, or in kind or by way of injection of assets, intellectual property rights or land use rights based on their appraised value, and may also convert lawfully transferred non-monetary assets into capital contribution with a monetary value, save for assets prohibited to be contributed as capital by the law or administrative regulations. If a capital contribution is made other than in cash, a valuation and verification of the asset contributed must be carried out without any over-valuation or under-valuation, subject to any provisions of the law or administrative regulations on valuation. The amount of monetary contribution by all shareholders shall not be less than 30% of the registered capital of the company.

A joint stock limited company may issue registered or bearer share certificates. The Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions provide that shares issued to foreign investors and listed overseas be issued in registered form and shall be denominated in Renminbi and subscribed for in foreign currency. Shares issued to foreign investors and investors from the territories of Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan and listed in Hong Kong are classified as H shares, and those shares issued to investors within the PRC other than the territories specified above are known as domestic shares. Under the Special Regulations, upon approval of the CSRC, a company may agree, in the underwriting agreement in respect of an issue of H shares, to retain not more than 15% of the aggregate number of H shares proposed to be issued after accounting for the number of underwritten shares. The share offering price may be equal to or greater than the par value, but may not be less than the par value.

Increase in share capital

According to the PRC Company Law, the issuance of shares shall be conducted in a fair and equitable manner. Shares in the same class shall rank pari passu with one another. Shares of the same class in the same offer shall be issued on the same terms and at the same price. The same price per share shall be paid by any units or individuals subscribing for shares.

When a joint stock limited company is issuing new shares, resolutions shall be passed by a shareholders' general meeting, approving/setting the issue price of the new shares, the commencement and end of the new share issue and the class and amount of new shares to be issued to existing shareholders. When a joint stock limited company launches a public issue of new shares with the approval of the securities regulatory authorities under the State Council, a new share offering prospectus and financial accounting report must be published and a subscription form must be prepared. After the new share issuance of the Company has been paid up, the change must be registered with the company registration authorities and an announcement must be made. Where a joint stock limited company is issuing new shares to increase its registered capital, the subscription of new shares by shareholders shall be conducted in accordance with provisions on the payment of subscription amounts in relation to the incorporation of the company.

Besides the PRC Company Law's provision that the issue of new shares shall be approved by a shareholders' general meeting, the PRC Securities Law also stipulates that any company that makes an initial public offer (IPO) of its stock shall: (i) have a sound corporate governance structure and be well-operated; (ii) have a profitable outlook and be of sound financial status; (iii) have no record of having filed any false financial accounting documents in the previous three years or any other major legal irregularity; and (iv) meet any other State Council-approved requirement prescribed by the securities regulatory authority under the State Council.

Reduction of share capital

Subject to the minimum registered capital requirements, a joint stock limited company may reduce its registered capital in accordance with the following procedures prescribed by the PRC Company Law:

- (i) the joint stock limited company shall prepare a balance sheet and a list of assets;
- (ii) the reduction of registered capital must be approved by shareholders in a shareholders' general meeting;
- (iii) the joint stock limited company shall inform its creditors of the reduction in capital within ten days and publish an announcement of the reduction in the newspaper within thirty days after the resolution approving the reduction has been passed;
- (iv) the creditors of the company may within the statutory prescribed time limit require the company to pay its debts or provide guarantees covering the debts; and
- (v) the company must apply to the relevant administration bureau for industry and commence the registration of the reduction in registered capital.

Repurchase of shares

A Company may not purchase its own shares other than for one of the following purposes:

- (i) to reduce its registered share capital;
- (ii) to merge with another company that holds its shares;
- (iii) to grant shares to its employees as incentives;
- (iv) to purchase its own shares from its shareholders who vote against the resolution regarding the merger or demerger with other company in a shareholders' general meeting; and
- (v) such other purposes permitted by law and administrative regulations.

The company's acquisition of its own shares on the grounds set out in (i) to (iii) above shall require approval by way of a resolution passed by a shareholders' general meeting. Following the company's acquisition of its shares in accordance with the foregoing, such shares shall be canceled within ten days from the date of acquisition in the case of (i) and transferred or canceled within six months in the case of (ii) or (iv).

Shares acquired by the company in accordance with (iii) under paragraph one of this section shall not exceed 5% of the total number of issued shares of the company. Such acquisition shall be financed by funds appropriated from the company's profit after taxation, and the shares so acquired shall be transferred to the employees of the company within one year.

Transfer of shares

Shares held by shareholders may be transferred in accordance with the relevant laws and regulations. A shareholder may only effect a transfer of its shares on a stock exchange established in accordance with law or by other ways as required by the State Council. Registered shares may be transferred after the shareholders endorse their signatures on the back of the share certificates or in any other manner specified by the law or administrative regulations. Following the transfer, the company shall enter the name of the transferee and its address into the share register. The transfer of bearer's share certificate shall become effective upon the delivery of such share certificate to the transferee by the shareholder. Subject to the PRC Company Law, no changes of registration in the share register provided in the foregoing shall be effected during a period of twenty days prior to the convening of the shareholders' general meeting or five days prior to the record day for the purpose of determining entitlements to dividend distributions, subject to any legal provisions on the registration of changes in the share register of listed companies. Subject to the Mandatory Provisions, the shareholders' register may not be modified within the thirty days preceding the shareholders' general meeting or within the five days preceding any ex-dividend date fixed by the company.

Shares held by a promoter may not be transferred within one year after the company's establishment. Shares of the company issued prior to the public issue of shares shall not be transferred within one year from the date of the company's listing on a stock exchange. Directors, supervisors and the senior management of a company shall declare to the company their shareholdings in the company and any changes in such shareholdings. During their term of office, they shall transfer no more than 25% of the shares they hold in the company. They shall not transfer the shares they hold within one year from the date of the company's listing on a stock exchange, nor within six months after they have resigned from their positions with the company. The articles of association may lay down other restrictive provisions in respect of the transfer of shares in the company held by the Directors, supervisors and the senior management of the company.

Shareholders

A shareholder's rights and duties are all stipulated in the company's articles of association, which is binding on all shareholders.

Under the PRC Company Law and the Mandatory Provisions, the rights of a shareholder include:

- (i) to attend shareholders' general meetings and exercise the voting rights on the basis of the number of the shares held by such shareholder personally or appoint an agent to attend such meetings and exercise the rights referred to hereinabove;

- (ii) to transfer the shares held by such shareholder subject to the applicable laws, regulations and the company's article;
- (iii) to bring an action in the people's court to rescind the resolution when any law or administrative regulation or any legal right or interest of any shareholder is violated by a resolution passed by the shareholders' general meeting or the board of directors;
- (iv) to inspect the articles of association, share register, counterfoil of company debentures, minutes of shareholders' general meetings, board resolutions, resolutions of the supervisory committee and financial and accounting reports and to make proposals or enquiries in respect of the company's operations;
- (v) to receive dividends in respect of the number of shares held;
- (vi) to receive residual properties of the company in proportion to their shareholdings upon the liquidation of the company; and
- (vii) any other shareholders' rights provided for in the articles of association.

The obligations of a shareholder include the obligation to abide by the company's articles of association, to pay the subscription moneys in respect of the shares subscribed for, to be liable for the company's debts and liabilities to the extent of the amount of subscription moneys agreed to be paid in respect of the shares taken up by him and any other shareholders' obligation specified in the company's articles of association.

Shareholders' general meetings

The shareholders' general meeting is the organ of authority of the company, which exercises its powers in accordance with the PRC Company Law.

The shareholders' general meeting exercises the following principal powers:

- (i) to decide on the company's operational policies and investment plans;
- (ii) to elect or remove the directors and supervisors (that are not staff representatives) and to decide on matters relating to the remuneration of directors and supervisors;

- (ix) to decide on issues such as merger, division, dissolution and liquidation of the company and other matters;
- (x) to amend the company's articles of association; and
- (xi) other powers as provided for in the articles of association.

Shareholders' general meetings are required to be held once every year. An extraordinary shareholders' general meeting is required to be held within two months after the occurrence of any of the following:

- (i) the number of directors is less than the number stipulated by the PRC Company Law or less than two-thirds of the number specified in the articles of association;
- (ii) the aggregate losses of the company which are not recovered reach one third of the company's total paid-in share capital;
- (iii) when shareholders alone or in aggregate holding 10% or more of the company's shares request the convening of an extraordinary general meeting;
- (iv) whenever the board of directors deems necessary;
- (v) when the supervisory committee so requests; or
- (vi) other circumstances as provided for in the articles of associations.

Shareholders' general meetings shall be convened by the board of directors, and presided over by the chairman of the board of directors. In the event that the chairman is incapable of performing or not performing his duties, the meeting shall be presided over by the vice chairman. In the event that the vice chairman is incapable of performing or not performing his duties, a director nominated by more than half of directors shall preside over the meeting. Where the board of directors is incapable of performing or not performing its duties of convening the shareholders' general meeting, the supervisory committee shall convene and preside over such meeting in a timely manner. In case the supervisory committee fails to convene and preside over such meeting, shareholders alone or in aggregate holding more than 10% of the company's shares for ninety days consecutively may unilaterally convene and preside over such meeting.

Subject to the PRC Company Law, notice of the shareholders' general meeting stating the time and venue of and matters to be considered at the meeting shall be given to all shareholders twenty days before the meeting. Notice of extraordinary general meetings shall be given to all shareholders fifteen days prior to the meeting. Notice of the issuance of bearer's share shall be announced thirty days before the meeting. Subject to the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions, such notice shall be delivered to all the shareholders forty-five days in advance, and the matters to be considered at the meeting shall be specified. Subject to the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions, the confirmation letter of the shareholders planning to attend the meeting shall be delivered to the company twenty days in advance of the meeting. Moreover, subject to the Special Regulations, shareholders holding more than 5% of the company's shares carrying voting rights may put forward a new proposal in writing for the meeting to discuss at the shareholders' annual meeting, and if the proposal falls within the purview of the meeting, it shall be placed on the agenda of that meeting.

Shareholders present at a shareholders' general meeting have one vote for each share they hold, save that shares held by the company are not entitled to any voting rights. Resolutions of the shareholders' general meeting must be adopted by more than half of the voting rights held by shareholders present at the meeting, with the exception of matters relating to merger, division, dissolution, change of category, increasing or reduction of registered capital of a company or amendments to the articles of association, which must be adopted by more than two-thirds of the voting rights held by the shareholders present at the meeting. Where the PRC Company Law and the articles of association provide that the transfer or acquisition of significant assets or the provision of external guarantees by a company must be approved by way of resolution of the shareholders' general meeting, the directors shall convene a shareholders' general meeting promptly to vote on the above matters. The accumulative voting system may be adopted pursuant to the provisions of the articles of association or a resolution of the shareholders' general meeting for the election of directors and supervisors at the shareholders' general meeting. Under the accumulative voting system, each share shall be entitled to votes equivalent to the number of directors or supervisors to be elected at the shareholders' general meeting and shareholders may consolidate their voting rights when casting a vote.

Minutes shall be prepared in respect of matters considered at the shareholders' general meeting and the president of the meeting and directors attending the meeting shall sign to endorse such minutes. The minutes shall be kept together with the shareholders' attendance register and the proxy forms.

According to the Mandatory Provisions, the increase or reduction of share capital, the issue of shares of any class, warrants or other similar securities, and corporate bonds, the liquidation, merger, division, dissolution of the company and any other matters in respect of which may affect the Company in material respects if the shareholders by ordinary resolution so decide, must be approved through special resolutions by more than two-thirds of the voting rights held by shareholders present at the meeting.

There is no specific provision in the PRC Company Law regarding the number of shareholders constituting a quorum in a shareholders' meeting, although the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions provide that a company's annual general meeting may be convened when replies to the notice of that meeting from shareholders holding shares representing 50% of the voting rights in the company have been received twenty days before the proposed date, or if that 50% level is not achieved, the company shall within five days of the last day for receipt of the replies notify shareholders again by public announcement of the matters to be considered at the meeting and the date and place of the meeting and the annual general meeting may be held thereafter. The Mandatory Provisions require class meetings to be held in the event of a variation or derogation of the class rights of a class. Holders of domestic invested shares and holder of H shares are deemed to be different classes of shareholders for this purpose.

Directors

A company shall have a board of directors, which shall consist of five to 19 members. Members of the board of directors may include staff representatives of the company, who shall be democratically elected by the company's staff at the staff representative assembly, general staff meeting or otherwise. The term of a director shall be stipulated in the articles of association, provided that no term of office shall last for more than three years. A director may serve consecutive terms if re-elected. A director shall continue to perform his duties in accordance with the laws, administrative regulations and articles of association until a re-elected director takes office, if re-election is not conducted in a timely manner upon the expiry of his term of office or if the resignation of directors results in the number of directors being less than the quorum.

- (x) to formulate the company's basic management system; and
- (xi) to exercise any other power under the articles of association.

Meetings of the board of directors shall be convened at least twice a year. Notice of meeting shall be given to all directors and supervisors ten days before the meeting. Interim board meetings may be convened by shareholders representing more than 10% of voting rights, more than one third of the directors or the supervisory committee. The chairman shall convene and preside over such meeting within ten days after receiving such proposal. The board of directors may provide for a different method of giving notice and notice period for convening an extraordinary meeting of the board of directors. Meetings of the board of directors shall be held only if half or more of the directors are present.

Resolutions of the board of directors require the approval of more than half of all directors. Each director shall have one vote for resolutions to be approved by the board of directors. Directors shall attend board meetings in person. If a director is unable to attend a board meeting, he may appoint another director by a written power of attorney specifying the scope of the authorization to attend the meeting on his behalf.

If a resolution of the board of directors violates the law, administrative regulations or the company's articles of association, and as a result of which the company sustains serious losses, the directors participating in the resolution are liable to compensate the company. However, if it can be proved that a director expressly objected to the resolution when the resolution was voted on, and that such objections were recorded in the minutes of the meeting, such director may be relieved from that liability.

Under the PRC Company Law, the following persons may not serve as a director of a company:

- (i) persons without civil capacity or with restricted civil capacity;
- (ii) persons who have committed the offence of corruption, bribery, taking of property, misappropriation of property or destruction of the social economic order, and have been sentenced to criminal punishment, where less than five years have elapsed since the date of completion of the sentence; or persons who have been deprived of their political rights due to criminal offence, where less than five years have elapsed since the date of the completion of implementation of this deprivation;
- (iii) persons who are former directors, factory managers or managers of a company or enterprise which has become bankrupt and been liquidated and who are personally liable for the bankruptcy of such company or enterprise, where less than three years have elapsed since the date of the completion of the bankruptcy and liquidation of the company or enterprise;

Upon liquidation of the company's properties and the preparation of the balance sheet and inventory of assets, the liquidation committee shall draw up a liquidation plan to be submitted to the shareholders' meeting, shareholders' general meeting or people's court for confirmation.

The remaining assets of the company after payment of liquidation expenses, wages, social insurance expenses and statutory compensation, outstanding taxes and the company's debt shall be distributed to shareholders according to their proportion of capital contribution in the case of companies with limited liability and according to shareholding proportion in the case of joint stock limited companies. The company shall continue to exist during the liquidation period, although it can only engage in any operating activities that are related to the liquidation. The company's properties shall not be distributed to the shareholders before repayment are made in accordance to the foregoing provisions.

Following such declaration, the liquidation committee shall hand over all affairs of the liquidation to the people's court.

After such a declaration has been obtained, the shareholder may apply to the company for the issuance of replacement certificates.

Securities Law and Regulations and Regulatory Regimes

Since 1992, the PRC has promulgated a number of regulations in relation to the issue and trading of shares and disclosure of information. In October 1992, the Securities Commission and the CSRC were established under the State Council. The Securities Commission is responsible for coordinating the drafting of relevant laws and regulations on securities, formulating policies on securities affairs, planning the development of securities markets and guiding, coordinating and regulating all PRC institutions involved in securities affairs and supervising the CSRC. The CSRC is the regulatory and execution arm of the Securities Commission and is responsible for drafting regulations governing the securities market, supervising securities companies, regulating the domestic and overseas public issue of securities by PRC companies, supervising securities trading, compiling securities related statistics and conducted research and analysis. In 1998, the State Council decided to cancel the Securities Commission of the State Council and the functions of the Securities Commission was assumed by the CSRC.

On December 25, 1995, the State Council promulgated the Regulations of the State Council Concerning Domestic Listed Foreign Shares of Joint Stock Limited Companies (國務院關於股份有限公司境內上市外資股的規定). These regulations deal mainly with the issue, subscription, trading, declaration of dividends and other distributions of domestic listed foreign shares and the disclosure of information of joint stock limited companies having domestic listed foreign shares.

On December 29, 1998, the Standing Committee of the NPC promulgated the PRC Securities Law which came into effect on July 1, 1999. This is the first national securities law in the PRC and is the fundamental law comprehensively regulating activities in the PRC securities market. On August 28, 2004 and October 27, 2005, the PRC Securities Law was respectively revised twice. The PRC Securities Law is applicable to the issuance and trading in the PRC of shares, company bonds and other securities designated by the State Council according to law, and provisions of the issuance and transaction of securities, acquisitions of listed companies, stock exchanges, security companies and the duties and responsibilities of securities regulatory authority under the State Council, etc. Where the PRC Securities

Law does not apply, the provisions of the PRC Company Law and other applicable laws and administrative regulations will apply.

Arbitration Laws

The Arbitration Law of the People's Republic of China (中華人民共和國仲裁法) (the “Arbitration Law”) was passed by the Standing Committee of the NPC on August 31, 1994 and came into effect on September 1, 1995. It is applicable to, among other matters, contract disputes or other property disputes where the parties have entered into a written agreement to refer the matter to arbitration before an arbitration committee constituted in accordance with the Arbitration Law. Under the Arbitration Law, an arbitration committee may, before the promulgation by the PRC Arbitration Association of arbitration regulations, formulate interim arbitration rules in accordance with the Arbitration Law and the PRC Civil Procedure Law. Where the parties have by an agreement provided arbitration as a method for dispute resolution, the people's court will refuse to handle the case if one party institutes legal proceedings in a people's court, unless the arbitration agreement has lapsed.

The Hong Kong Listing Rules and the Mandatory Provisions require an arbitration clause to be included in the articles of association of a company listed in Hong Kong and, in the case of the Hong Kong Listing Rules, also in a contract between the company and each director or supervisor, to the effect that whenever any dispute or claim arises from any rights or obligations provided in the articles of association, the PRC Company Law or other relevant laws and administrative regulations concerning the affairs of a company between (i) a holder of H shares and the company; (ii) a holder of H shares and a holder of domestic shares; or (iii) a holder of H shares and the directors, supervisors or other officers of the company; such parties shall submit that dispute or claim for arbitration before either the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission (“CIETAC”) or the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre (“HKIAC”) for arbitration. If the party seeking arbitration elects to arbitrate the dispute or claim at the HKIAC, then either party may apply to have such arbitration conducted in Shenzhen according to the securities arbitration rules of the HKIAC.

CIETAC is an economic and trade arbitration organ in the PRC. In accordance with CIETAC Arbitration Rules (中國國際經濟貿易仲裁委員會仲裁規則) as amended on January 11, 2005 (which amendment became effective from May 1, 2005), the jurisdiction of CIETAC covers disputes involving Hong Kong. CIETAC is located in Beijing with South China branch office in Shenzhen as well as the other branch office in Shanghai. Under the Arbitration Law, an arbitral award is final and binding on the parties. If a party fails to comply with an award, the other party to the award may apply to the people's court for enforcement. A people's court may refuse to enforce an arbitral award made by an arbitration commission if there is any procedural irregularity (including irregularity in the composition of the arbitration committee or the giving of an award beyond the scope of the arbitration agreement or the jurisdiction of the arbitration commission).

A party seeking to enforce an arbitral award of a foreign affairs arbitration organ of the PRC against a party who or whose property is not within the PRC may apply to a foreign court with jurisdiction over the case for enforcement. Similarly, an arbitral award made by a foreign arbitration body may be recognized and enforced by the PRC courts in accordance with the principles of reciprocity or any international treaty concluded or acceded to by the PRC. The PRC acceded to the Convention on the Recognition and Enforcement of Foreign Arbitral Awards (承認及執行外國仲裁判決的公約) (“New York Convention”) adopted on June 10, 1958 pursuant to a resolution of the Standing Committee of the NPC passed on December 2, 1986. The New York Convention provides that all arbitral awards made in a state which is a party to the New York Convention shall be recognized and enforced by other parties to the New York Convention subject to their right to refuse enforcement under certain circumstances including where the enforcement of the arbitral award is against the public policy of the state to which the application for enforcement is made. It was declared by the Standing Committee of the NPC simultaneously with the accession of the PRC that (1) the PRC will only recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards on the principle of reciprocity; and (2) the PRC will only apply the New York Convention to disputes considered under PRC laws to be arising from contractual and non-contractual mercantile legal relations. An arrangement for reciprocal enforcement of arbitral awards between Hong Kong and China was signed on June 18, 1999. This new arrangement has been approved by the Supreme People's Court of the PRC and the Hong Kong Legislative Council and became effective from February 1, 2000. The arrangement is made in accordance with the spirit of the New York Convention, allowing awards made by PRC arbitral authorities to be enforceable in Hong Kong in accordance with law and awards by Hong Kong arbitral authorities to be enforceable in the PRC.

Foreign Exchange Control

Foreign exchange control is implemented in the PRC. The PRC Foreign Exchange Control Regulations (中華人民共和國外匯管理條例) promulgated by the State Council on January 29, 1996 and came into effect on April 1, 1996 (as amended on January 14, 1997 and August 5, 2008) stipulates the principles and the punishment of the country's control of foreign exchange revenue and spending. The PBOC stipulates the basic regulation of the foreign exchange control and the SAFE and its lower organs take the responsibility of the execution of the detail regulations and the foreign exchange control. Besides the PRC Foreign Exchange Control Regulations, the Regulations on the Foreign Exchange Settlement, Sale and Payments which were promulgated on June 20, 1996 by PBOC and took effect on July 1, 1996 and which contain detailed provisions regulating the holding, sale and purchase of foreign exchange by enterprises, individuals, economic organizations and social institutions in the PRC. The Announcement of the People's Bank of China on Reforming the RMB Exchange Rate Regime issued by the PBOC on July 21, 2005 stipulated that starting from July 21, 2005, the PRC will reform the exchange rate regime by moving into a managed floating exchange rate regime based on market supply and demand with reference to a basket of currencies. The People's Bank of China will announce the closing price of a foreign currency such as the US dollar traded against the RMB in the interbank foreign exchange market after the closing of the market on each working day, and will make it the central parity for the trading against the RMB on the following working day.

Control of revenue and spending of foreign exchange is relaxed. Enterprises within the PRC which require foreign exchange for their ordinary trading and non-trading activities, import activities and repayment of foreign debts may purchase foreign exchange from designated banks if the application is supported by relevant documents. Furthermore, foreign investment enterprises that require foreign exchange for dividend payments, such as profit distribution to foreign investors, may draw funds in their foreign exchange bank accounts kept with designated banks after paying due dividend taxes. Should such foreign exchange be insufficient, foreign investment enterprises may purchase foreign exchange from designated banks. While foreign exchange control on current account transactions has been relaxed, the direct investment by foreign investors, the drawdown of foreign currency loans by onshore companies, the provision of foreign exchange guarantees, overseas investments and any other types of capital account transactions that involve the purchase of foreign exchange remain subject to the approval of the State Administration of Foreign Exchange or the registration in accordance with the laws. When conducting foreign exchange transactions, the designated banks may, based on the exchange rate published by the PBOC and subject to certain limits, freely determine the applicable exchange rate.

Regulations of overseas investment

According to the Measures for the Administration of Overseas Investment (境外投資管理辦法) promulgated by Ministry of Commerce on March 16, 2009 and came into effect on May 1, 2009, the enterprises' overseas investment stipulation in such measures shall require the ratification of the departments in charge of commerce. If there is any change to be made to the application items of the original overseas investment after ratification, the enterprise concerned shall apply to the original ratifying organ for going through the procedure of alteration ratification.

According to the Regulations on Foreign Exchange Administration of the Overseas Direct Investment of Domestic Institutions (境內機構境外直接投資外匯管理規定) stipulated by the State Administration of Foreign Exchange on July 13, 2009 and came into effect on August 1, 2009, Chinese enterprises that have been permitted to make investment abroad shall handle with the department for control of foreign exchange the procedures of registration about the foreign exchange for investment abroad.

According to the Interim Measures for the Administration of Examination and Approval of the Overseas Investment Projects (境外投資項目核准暫行管理辦法) promulgated by the National Development and Reform Commission and come into effect on October 9, 2004, the direct or indirect overseas investment by all kinds of juridical persons within the territory of the PRC shall be subject to the examination and approval of the State Council or the relevant Development and Reform Commission authority or the State Council. The investors should apply to the National Development and Reform Commission for alteration in case the alteration of the investors or their stock rights occurs to the approved projects.

2. HONG KONG LAWS AND REGULATIONS

(a) Hong Kong company law and its comparison with the PRC law applicable to a joint stock limited company incorporated under the PRC Company Law

Hong Kong company law is primarily set out in the Companies Ordinance and supplemented by common law. There are material differences between Hong Kong company law and the PRC law applicable to a joint stock limited company incorporated under the PRC Company Law, to which the Company is and will be subject, particularly in the area of investor protection. Certain of the material differences between the PRC company law and Hong Kong company law which is currently in force are summarized below. This summary, however, is not intended to be an exhaustive comparison. It should also be noted that the summary relates only to joint stock limited companies incorporated under the PRC Company Law and that the summary and the information in it is current only as of the date of this prospectus.

(i) Derivative action by minority shareholders

Hong Kong law permits minority shareholders to start a derivative action on behalf of a company against directors who have been guilty of a breach of their fiduciary duties to the company, if such directors control a majority of votes at a general meeting thereby effectively preventing a company from suing the directors in breach of their duties in its own name.

Although the PRC Company Law gives (a) shareholder(s) of a company the right to initiate proceedings in the People's Court against the directors of the company when such directors are in violation of the law or the articles of association of the company, there is no form of proceedings which is the same as a derivative action under the PRC Company Law.

(ii) Remedies of the Company

Under the PRC Company Law, if a director, supervisor or manager in carrying out his duties infringes any law or administrative regulation or the articles of association of a company, resulting in damage to the company, that director, supervisor or manager should be responsible to the company for such damages. In addition, in compliance with the Hong Kong Listing Rules and the Mandatory Provisions, the Articles of Association set out remedies of the Company similar to those available under Hong Kong law (including rescission of the relevant contract and recovery of profits made by a Director, Supervisor or officer).

(iii) Directors, officers and supervisors

The PRC Company Law provides for the disqualification of directors, supervisors and managers in circumstances where they enter into business contracts with the Company, and for prohibitions of certain unauthorized benefits, but contain no provision restricting the authority of the directors to make major dispositions or prohibiting payment to them for loss of office without shareholders' approval. However, the Mandatory Provisions contain certain restrictions on major dispositions and specify the circumstances under which a director may receive compensation for loss of office, all of which provisions have been incorporated in the Articles of Association, a summary of which is set out in Appendix VII.

Under Hong Kong company law, there is no concept of a supervisory committee for a company in addition to its board of directors, but a PRC joint stock limited company must have supervisors whose main duties include ensuring compliance with laws and regulations, and the articles of association of the company, by its directors and managers. Each supervisor owes a duty, in the exercise of his powers, to act in good faith and honestly in what he considers to be the best interests of the company and to exercise the care, diligence and skill that a reasonably prudent person would exercise in comparable circumstances.

(iv) Minority protection

Under Hong Kong law, a shareholder who complains that the affairs of a company incorporated in Hong Kong are conducted in a manner unfairly prejudicial to his interests may petition to court to either wind up the company or make an appropriate order regulating the affairs of the company. In addition, on the application of a specified number of members, the Financial Secretary may appoint inspectors who are given extensive statutory powers to investigate the affairs of a company incorporated in Hong Kong.

There is no specific provision in the PRC Company Law to guard against oppression by the majority shareholders of minority shareholders but the Company, as required by the Mandatory Provisions and the Hong Kong Listing Rules, has adopted in the Articles of Association minority protection provisions similar to (though not as comprehensive as) those available under Hong Kong law, to the effect that a controlling shareholder may not act in a manner prejudicial to the interests of other shareholders to achieve certain objectives.

(v) Receiving agent

Under both PRC and Hong Kong law, dividends once declared become debts payable to shareholders, but the limitation of action period is two years in the PRC as opposed to six years in Hong Kong. In accordance with the requirements of the Mandatory Provisions and the Hong Kong Listing Rules, the Articles of Association provide for the appointment of an agent in Hong Kong, which is a trust corporation registered under the Trustee Ordinance (Chapter 29 of the Laws of Hong Kong) in Hong Kong to receive all dividends and all other monies payable to H Share holders on behalf of such shareholders as required by the Hong Kong Listing Rules. The Articles of Association also contain provisions which provide that unclaimed dividends may only be forfeited by the Company after the time period as prescribed under the PRC law.

(vi) Variation of class rights

The PRC Company Law makes no specific provision relating to variation of class rights. However, the PRC Company Law states that the State Council can promulgate regulations relating to other kinds of shares. The Mandatory Provisions contain elaborate provisions relating to the circumstances which are deemed to be variations of class rights and the approval procedures required to be followed in respect thereof. These provisions have been incorporated in the Articles of Association, which are summarized in Appendix VII. Under the Companies Ordinance, no rights attached to any class of shares can be varied except with the approval of a special resolution of the holders of the relevant class at a separate meeting or the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths in nominal value of the issued shares of the class in question.

The Company (as required by the Hong Kong Listing Rules and the Mandatory Provisions) has adopted in the Articles of Association provisions protecting class rights in a similar manner to those found in Hong Kong law. Holders of overseas listed foreign invested shares and domestic invested shares are defined in the Articles of Association as different classes, except where the Company issues and allots, in any 12-month period pursuant to a shareholders' mandate (obtained by way of a special resolution in general meeting), not more than 20% of each of the issued overseas listed foreign invested shares and the domestic invested shares existing as at the date of the shareholders' mandate.

(vii) Share capital

Under Hong Kong law, the authorized share capital of a Hong Kong company is the amount of share capital which the company is authorized to issue and a company is not bound to issue the entire amount of its authorized share capital. For a joint stock limited company formed under the PRC Company Law, the registered share capital and the issued share capital are the same. For a Hong Kong company, the authorized share capital may be larger than the issued share capital. Hence, the directors of a Hong Kong company may, with the prior approval of the shareholders if required, cause the company to issue new shares. In the case of a PRC company, any increase of the registered capital must be approved by the shareholders in general meeting and the relevant PRC government and regulatory authorities. After completion of an approved new issue, the company has to register the increase in share capital with the relevant State Administration for Industry and Commerce or its competent local counterpart.

The minimum registered capital of a company which has applied for the listing of its shares on a stock exchange is RMB30 million under the PRC Company Law. Hong Kong law does not effectively prescribe any minimum capital requirements for a Hong Kong company. Under the PRC Company Law, the shares subscribed for in the form of intangible assets (excluding land use rights) may not exceed 20% of a joint stock limited company's registered capital if the concerned joint stock limited company is not one of those hi-tech companies specified by the State Council. There is no such restriction under Hong Kong law on a Hong Kong company.

(viii) Restriction on shareholding and transfer of shares

The PRC Company Law makes no reference to the class of shares which may be subscribed for or traded by overseas investors but has provisions that shares of a company to be listed overseas must comply with the Special Regulations. The Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions provide, among other things, that H shares must be in registered form and include other matters some of which are referred to below. There is no restriction under Hong Kong law on a person's ability to deal in shares in a Hong Kong company on the basis of his residence or nationality. Under the PRC Company Law, shares in a joint stock limited company held by its promoters, directors or managers may not be transferred within certain periods of time. There are no such restrictions on shareholdings and transfers of shares under Hong Kong law apart from the "six-month lock up period" on our Company's issue of shares ending on the date which is six months from the date on which dealings in the H Shares commence on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, and the "12-month lock up period" on the Controlling Shareholder's disposal of shares ending on the date which is 12 months from the date on which dealings in the H Shares commence on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

(ix) Notice of meetings

Under the PRC Company Law, shareholders of a joint stock limited company must be given 20 days' notice of an annual general meeting or 15 day's notice of an extraordinary general meeting or, in the case of bearer shares, such notice should be published 30 days before the meeting. Under the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions (which apply to the Company) written notice of 45 days must be given to all shareholders, and shareholders wishing to attend the meeting must reply in writing to reach the company 20 days before the date of the meeting. For a Hong Kong limited company, the minimum period of notice of a general meeting where convened for the purpose of considering ordinary resolutions is 14 days and where convened for the purpose of considering special resolutions is 21 days. The notice period for an annual general meeting is also 21 days.

(x) Quorum

Under Hong Kong company law, any two shareholders personally present will constitute a quorum for a general meeting, unless the articles of association provide otherwise. For one member companies, one member will be a quorum. The PRC Company Law makes no specific provision as to when a quorum is regarded as being present but the Special Regulations and the Mandatory Provisions provide that a company's annual general meeting can be convened when replies to the notice of that meeting have been received from shareholders whose Shares represent 50% of the voting rights in the Company at least 20 days before the proposed date, or if that 50% level is not achieved, that the Company shall within five days notify shareholders in a public announcement and the annual general meeting may be held thereafter.

(xi) Voting

Under Hong Kong company law, ordinary resolutions are passed by more than one half of the votes cast by those shareholders voting in person or by proxy at a general meeting and special resolutions are passed by not less than three quarters of such votes. Under the PRC Company Law, the passing of any resolution requires the passing by more than half of the votes of the shareholders attending and voting except in cases of proposed amendment to the articles of association, merger, division or dissolution of a company where the approval of a two-thirds majority is required.

(xii) Dividends

Under Hong Kong law, the limitation period for an action to recover a debt (including the recovery of dividends) is six years, whereas under PRC laws the relevant limitation period is two years.

(xiii) Financial disclosure

A joint stock limited company is required under the PRC Company Law to make available at its office for inspection by shareholders its annual balance sheet, profit and loss account, statement of changes in financial situation and other relevant annexures 20 days before the annual general meeting of shareholders. The annual balance sheet has to be verified by registered accountants. The Companies Ordinance requires a company to send to every shareholder a copy of its balance sheet, auditors' report and directors' report which are to be laid before the company in its annual general meeting not less than 21 days before such meeting.

Under the Articles of Association (as required by the Mandatory Provisions), in addition to preparing accounts according to PRC accounting standards, the Company must have its accounts prepared and audited in accordance with international accounting standards or Hong Kong accounting standards and its financial statements must also contain a statement of the financial effect of the material differences (if any) from the financial statements prepared in accordance with the PRC accounting standards. The Articles of Association also provides that the Company is required to publish its annual accounts within 4 months from the end of a financial year, to publish its interim accounts within 2 months from the end of the first six months of a financial year and to publish its quarterly accounts within 1 month from the end of the first three months and the first nine months of a financial year respectively. The Special Regulations require that there should not be any inconsistency between the information disclosed within and outside the PRC and that, to the extent that there are differences in the information disclosed in accordance with the relevant PRC and overseas laws, regulations and requirements of the relevant stock exchanges, such differences should also be disclosed simultaneously.

(xiv) Information on directors and shareholders

The PRC Company Law gives shareholders the right to inspect the Company's Articles of Association, minutes of the shareholders' general meetings and financial and accounting reports. Under the Articles of Association, shareholders have the right to inspect and copy (at reasonable charges) certain information on shareholders and on Directors similar to that available to shareholders of Hong Kong companies under Hong Kong law.

(xv) Corporate reorganization

Corporate reorganization involving a company incorporated in Hong Kong may be effected in a number of ways, such as a transfer of the whole or part of the business or property of the company in the course of being wound up voluntarily to another company pursuant to section 237 of the Companies Ordinance or a compromise or arrangement between the company and its creditors or between the company and its members pursuant to section 166 of the Companies Ordinance which requires the sanction of the court. Under the PRC law, the merger or demerger of a joint stock limited company has to be approved by shareholders in general meeting and the relevant governmental authorities.

(xvi) Arbitration of disputes

In Hong Kong, disputes between shareholders and a company incorporated in Hong Kong or its directors, managers and other senior officers can be resolved through the courts. The Articles of Association provide that disputes between a holder of H Shares and the Company and its directors, supervisors, managers or other senior officers or a holder of A Shares, arising from the Articles of Association, the PRC Company Law or other relevant law or administrative regulation which concerns the affairs of the Company must, with certain exceptions, be referred to arbitration at either the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre or the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission. Such arbitration is final and conclusive.

(xvii) Mandatory deductions

Under the PRC Company Law, after tax profits of a company are subject to deductions of contributions to the statutory common reserve fund and the statutory common welfare fund of the company before they can be distributed to shareholders. There are prescribed limits under the PRC Company Law for such deductions. There are no corresponding provisions under the Companies Ordinance.

(b) Hong Kong Listing Rules

The Hong Kong Listing Rules provide additional requirements which apply to us as an issuer incorporated in the PRC as a joint stock limited company and seeking a primary listing or whose primary listing is on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. Set out below is a summary of the principal provisions containing the additional requirements which apply to us.

If the Hong Kong Stock Exchange is not satisfied that the compliance adviser is fulfilling its responsibilities adequately, it may require us to terminate the compliance adviser's appointment and appoint a replacement as soon as possible.

The compliance adviser must keep the Company informed on a timely basis of changes in the Hong Kong Listing Rules and any new or amended law, regulation or code in Hong Kong applicable to the Company.

(ii) Accountants' reports

An accountants' report for a PRC issuer will not normally be regarded as acceptable by the Hong Kong Stock Exchange unless the relevant accounts have been audited to a standard comparable to that required in Hong Kong. The Hong Kong Stock Exchange may, at its discretion, accept a lower percentage of between 15% and 25% in the case of issuers with an expected market capitalisation at the time of listing of over HK$10 billion.

(v) Restrictions on purchase and subscription

Subject to governmental approval and the Articles of Association, we may repurchase our own H Shares on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in accordance with the provisions of the Hong Kong Listing Rules. Any special approval or general mandate given to the Directors to repurchase H Shares must not exceed 10% of the total amount of existing issued H Shares.

(vi) Supervisors

We are required to adopt rules governing dealings by the Supervisors in securities of our Company in terms no less exacting than those of the model code (set out in Appendix 10 to the Hong Kong Listing Rules) issued by the Hong Kong Stock Exchange.

We are required to obtain the approval of the Shareholders in a general meeting (at which the relevant Supervisor and his/her Associates shall not vote on the matter) prior to our Company or any of our subsidiaries entering into a service contract of the following nature with a Supervisor or proposed Supervisor of our Company or our subsidiaries: (i) the contract is for a duration that may exceed three years; or (ii) the contract expressly requires our Company or the relevant subsidiary of our Company to give more than one year's notice or to pay compensation or make other payments equivalent to more than one year's emoluments.
