II. PURPOSE OF CAPITAL CONTRIBUTION

III. RISK FACTORS

(1) Risk relating to approval

The Company has obtained the approval in respect of the establishment of Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) from the CIRC, however, Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) is still required to complete the work for such establishment within one year from the receipt of the approval notice and the commencement of operation is subject to the approval of the CIRC. Objectively, there is a possibility that no approval will be granted, and therefore there are uncertainties as to the implementation of this fund lending scheme.

(2) No cash inflows may be generated in the short term

If the application of Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) for commencement of operation has been approved by the CIRC, there are still risks that no cash inflows will be generated on such lent-out funds in the short term as Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) needs a period of time to operate and generate revenue and it takes longer time to generate profits. No cash inflows will be generated from the interest accrued on the initial working capital until the accumulated earnings of Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) reach the amount of the initial working capital.

(3) Potential risk relating to cash outflows

Pursuant to the regulatory requirements of the CIRC in respect of the solvency of insurance agencies, in the event that Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) becomes insolvent, it shall be obligated to inject additional working capital as one of the major promoters, in which case, there will be risks that a substantial amount of cash outflows may happen.

(4) Risk that the initial working capital may be written down

Pursuant to the regulatory requirements of the CIRC in respect of the attributes of the initial working capital of mutual insurance agencies, if the accumulated losses of Xinmei Mutual Life (to be established) reach 50% of its initial working capital or if there are evidences indicating that the loss-making trend is irreversible, there are risks that the loan principal and interest accrued thereon will be written down in full based on the amount of such losses.

(5) Risk relating to competition

Under the guidance of the “New Ten Guidelines” and the Trial Measures on Regulation of Mutual Insurance Agencies (《相互保險組織監管試行辦法》), the insurance industry demonstrated a new trend of rapid growth. However, other competent companies may also set up mutual insurance agencies to conduct similar businesses. As a newly-established mutual life insurance agency, it is subject to competition risks in the new market landscape.
