The Star Cruises Fleet

Star Cruises was incorporated in 1993 to tap Asia Pacific's potential as an international cruise destination. From its humble beginning with just one ship back in 1993, Star Cruises has grown to become "The Leading Cruise Line in Asia-Pacific" in just seven years. In the year 2000, Star Cruises became "The First Global Cruise Line" when it completed the acquisition of NCL Holding ASA which owns and operates Norwegian Cruise Line and Orient Lines. There are presently 9 ships* operated under the Star Cruises' brand in the Asia Pacific region.

 FREESTYLE CRUISINGSM

Miami-based Norwegian Cruise Line was first established as Norwegian Caribbean Lines by one of Norway's oldest and most respected shipping companies – Oslo-based Klostere Rederi A/S. NCL currently operates a fleet of 6 vessels and has three newbuilds scheduled for delivery by year 2002. In the year 2000, NCL introduced the "Freestyle Cruising" onboard selected vessels. The innovative concept originally pioneered by Star Cruises in Asia Pacific led to NCL winning awards in various categories for outstanding service, luxury and innovation by Porthole Cruise Magazine, Cruise Mates and Ocean Cruise News in 2000.
