

Mission

When affluent and influential readers want the most reliable English information on Greater China – be it in print or digital form – we want to ensure that the first source they turn to is the South China Morning Post. With over a century as the English language voice of Hong Kong, the SCMP Group remains committed to publishing the world's most authoritative and insightful content on Greater China.