REPORT OF THE MANAGER TO THE UNITHOLDERS

Market Review

On macroeconomic level, in the first half of 2015, China's economic operation was stable. China's GDP was up 7.0% from a year earlier. Although in the same period, the global economic recovery was weak, and China import and export declined, but the investment and consumption kept good growth. Many indicators stabilized. The whole economic is steady. We also think that economy needs further consolidation. Combined with the internal and external environment is more complex, we believe that the government would support strongly.

Overall, China's economy has implemented soft landing successfully. Maintaining reasonable growth and keeping further structure adjustment will still be the most important directions in the next period.

In the first half of 2015, the CSI 300 index was up 26.58%, and the valuation has recovered to 14.64x PE (based on expected earnings of 2015).

Portfolio review

In the first half of 2015, Fund's NAV per unit increased 27.90%. The underlying index returned 26.58% during the same period. The annualized tracking error of the fund is 0.6%.

Market Outlook

In the first half of 2015, the China's A-share market increased so fast and the volatility of the market was in high level. Currently, the risk of volatility reduces smoothly. The reducing of the A-share market leverage will help the market to keep stable development.

Looking forward to the next period, we still believe that "Growth stabilization and Structure adjustment" will be the most important theme of China economy. Some grand strategies, just like "made in China 2025", "Internet +" are worthy of our continued attention. The RMB internationalization, potential establishment of "Shenzhen-Hong Kong stock connect", the increased quota of QFII,RQFII and QDII and the further discussion of including A share into the MSCI index will still open up more opportunity for the China financial market.

In general, we hold a positive view on the A share market in the next period of 2015.

Hai Tong Asset Management (HK) Limited
