

Digital China Holdings Limited (Stock Code:0861) (“Digital China”) is the number one information technology (“IT”) products distributor and systems integrator as well as a leading networking product developer in China (source: IDC). It provides software and hardware solutions to its clients, with a strong focus to add value to them.

Digital China engages in three groups of businesses:

Distribution

Digital China distributes a vast array of IT products from 20 some international manufacturers, including notebook computers, desktop computers, PC servers, data projectors to consumer IT products through a network of 6,000 down-stream resellers and chainstores in China.

Systems

Targetting corporate users, the business provides systems products which include mainframe servers, networking and storage products, and packaged software systems products; and technical solution provisioning, hardware maintenance and training.

Services

Focusing telecommunications, finance, government and manufacturing sectors, the business provides consulting, application software development, systems integration and related training with a solid vertical industry-specific knowledge and capacity to implementation.

Digital China was spun off from Lenovo Group Limited and separately listed on the main board of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited on 1 June 2001. Right after the listing, Digital China became a constituent in the Hang Seng Mainland Composite Index – Information Technology as well as the Morgan Stanley Capital International Standard Index. Digital China is an associated company of Legend Holdings Limited.
