A woman with long brown hair, wearing a black shirt and a bright yellow-green high-visibility safety vest with reflective white stripes, is pointing her right arm towards a large object completely covered in white plastic wrap. She has a focused expression. To her left, a man in a black polo shirt and blue jeans stands observing. The background shows a warehouse or industrial setting with wooden pallets and equipment. The text "More importantly, it's the willingness to do everything possible;" is overlaid in white in the center of the image.

More importantly, it's the willingness to do everything possible;

A person's arm and hand are visible on the left side of the frame, pointing towards a large, three-dimensional, metallic-looking sign that spells out 'AADA' in capital letters. The sign is mounted on a white wall. The person is wearing a silver watch and a red beaded bracelet. In the foreground, there is a large, rectangular object wrapped in clear plastic bubble wrap. The background is slightly out of focus, showing what appears to be an exhibition or workshop space with various items and equipment.
